

Special Issue

Microplastics in Atmospheric, Aquatic, and Soil Ecosystems: Occurrence, Impacts, and Innovations in Detection and Mitigation

Message from the Guest Editors

The Special Issue also encourages contributions on remediation strategies, such as innovative filtration, biodegradation, and waste management approaches to mitigate microplastic pollution at the source and in affected ecosystems. In addition, papers exploring policy implications and governance, from local regulations to international agreements, will shed light on how scientific findings are translating into action. By fostering an interdisciplinary approach that bridges environmental science, toxicology, public health, and policy, this Special Issue offers a novel and significant platform for advancing our understanding of microplastic pollution and developing holistic solutions to this emerging environmental challenge.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Toxics (ISSN 2305-6304) is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal which provides an advanced forum for studies related to all aspects of toxic chemicals and materials. We aim to publish high quality work that furthers our understanding of the exposure, effects, and risks of chemicals and materials in humans and the natural environment as well as approaches to assess and/or manage the toxicological and ecotoxicological risks of chemicals and materials. Please consider publishing in Toxics when preparing your next paper.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, AGRIS, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Toxicology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Chemical Health and Safety)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 18.1 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 1.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
