Feature Papers in Neglected and Emerging Tropical Disease

Message from the Guest Editor

With the establishment of the Section Neglected and Emerging Tropical Disease for the journal Tropical Medicine and Infectious Disease, a Feature Paper collection is set up, under the leadership of the Section's Editor-in-Chief and Board members. This collection aims to collect state-of-the-art research work and comprehensive review papers on the epidemiology, presentation, diagnosis, treatment, prevention, and control of neglected and emerging tropical diseases. We accept full articles and comprehensive reviews. Research articles should be around 3000 words at minimum and should have more than 30 references. Review articles should be comprehensive. The main text of review papers should be around 4000 words at minimum and include at least two figures or tables.
