Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

Australia is well-recognized worldwide due to its research on infectious diseases and vaccine development. This Special Issue is devoted to vaccine development in Australia and promoting Australian vaccine work worldwide. Research articles and reviews are invited, which will be expected to provide a consolidated state of the art in this area. Australian academics are called upon to submit their research to this Special Issue.

The Special Issue will publish full research, review, and highly rated manuscripts addressing the above topic.
