The 10th Anniversary of Vaccines—Vaccines against Emerging and Tropical Infectious Diseases

Message from the Guest Editor

In recognition of this significant milestone, we are launching a Special Issue entitled “The 10th Anniversary of Vaccines—Vaccines against Emerging and Tropical Infectious Diseases”. This Special Issue will include high-quality papers on topics within the broad scope of Vaccines. We will consider manuscripts that investigate immunology and vaccinology against emerging and tropical infectious diseases, immunological responses to vaccine targets, novel approaches for vaccine development, novel vaccine delivery platforms, novel immunomodulatory adjuvants, role of innate immunity, immune correlates of vaccine efficacy, and evaluation of vaccines using animal models and humans. It is our pleasure to invite you to contribute an original research paper or a comprehensive review article for peer review and possible publication in Vaccines.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Vaccines (ISSN 2076-393X) has had a 6-year history of publishing peer-reviewed state of the art research that advances the knowledge of immunology in human disease protection. Immunotherapeutics, prophylactic vaccines, immunomodulators, adjuvants and the global differences in regulatory affairs are some of the highlights of the research published that have shaped global health. Our open access policy allows all researchers and interested parties to immediately scrutinize the rigorous evidence our publications have to offer. We are proud to present the work and perspectives of many to contribute to future decisions concerning human health.
