

Special Issue

Influenza Vaccines and Influenza Vaccination in Europe

Message from the Guest Editor

For this Special Issue, we welcome both original research and comprehensive review articles that focus on influenza vaccines used in Europe. We are interested in studies addressing the efficacy and effectiveness of influenza vaccines, vaccination rates, vaccine safety, and targeted vaccination within the population. Contributions focusing on antivirals and current and future influenza vaccine technologies are also welcome.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Vaccines (ISSN 2076-393X), founded in 2013, now has a firm history of publishing peer-reviewed, state-of-the-art research papers on vaccines and vaccination in the broadest sense. Areas covered include, but are not limited to, novel and emerging vaccine technologies, building on in-depth knowledge of what constitutes a protective immune response. These can be new vaccines for old diseases, or old vaccines for new diseases. Vaccines against cancer and autoimmune diseases explicitly are also within the scope of the journal. Because public opinion and even government policies towards vaccines and vaccination have changed, vaccine policy and public health issues are major concerns. Climate change will also have an impact on the spread of infectious diseases, and thus also on vaccine and vaccination policies worldwide.
