Vaccines and Other Prophylactic Interventions Against H5N1 Influenza Viruses

Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue, entitled “Vaccines and Other Prophylactic Interventions Against H5N1 Influenza Viruses”, we welcome submissions of original research, reviews, clinical trials, and opinion articles that shed light on the latest advances in the field of vaccines and other prophylactic interventions against HPAIV H5N1, with a particular emphasis on the following:

- Protection/efficacy of current vaccines;
- Generation of safe, immunogenic, and protective new vaccine candidates;
- Environmental and other factors affecting effectiveness of vaccines;
- Limitations of influenza vaccination;
- Vaccine adjuvants and immunomodulators;
- Evaluation of vaccine efficacy;
- Vaccine delivery methods and strategies;
- Early implementation of prevention policies.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Vaccines (ISSN 2076-393X), founded in 2013, now has a firm history of publishing peer-reviewed, state-of-the-art research papers on vaccines and vaccination in the broadest sense. Areas covered include, but are not limited to, novel and emerging vaccine technologies, building on in-depth knowledge of what constitutes a protective immune response. These can be new vaccines for old diseases, or old vaccines for new diseases. Vaccines against cancer and autoimmune diseases explicitly are also within the scope of the journal. Because public opinion and even government policies towards vaccines and vaccination have changed, vaccine policy and public health issues are major concerns. Climate change will also have an impact on the spread of infectious diseases, and thus also on vaccine and vaccination policies worldwide.
