COVID-19 Vaccination and Public Health: Addressing Global, Regional and Within-Country Inequalities

Message from the Guest Editors

We are announcing this Special Issue “COVID-19 Vaccination and Public Health: Addressing Global, Regional and Within-Country Inequalities”. This Special Issue focuses on under-researched populations and aims to introduce new insights regarding vaccine inequalities during the COVID-19 response. The research areas include the impact of COVID-19 vaccination, public health surveillance of disparities in COVID-19 vaccination coverage, global and within-country inequalities in access to vaccines, vaccine confidence, and coping strategies aimed at bridging the gap of health injustice observed during the pandemic. We welcome original research articles, reviews, and perspectives. We will provide you with a fast peer-review process to ensure the quick of your research. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Vaccines (ISSN 2076-393X) has had a 6-year history of publishing peer-reviewed state of the art research that advances the knowledge of immunology in human disease protection. Immunotherapeutics, prophylactic vaccines, immunomodulators, adjuvants and the global differences in regulatory affairs are some of the highlights of the research published that have shaped global health. Our open access policy allows all researchers and interested parties to immediately scrutinize the rigorous evidence our publications have to offer. We are proud to present the work and perspectives of many to contribute to future decisions concerning human health.
