Biomarkers in Veterinary Medicine

Message from the Guest Editor

Biomarkers are important indicators for evaluating pharmacology, toxicity, etc., in veterinary diagnosis, treatment, and basic research using experimental animals. In veterinary medicine, the use of appropriate biomarkers as indicators can lead to appropriate and timely diagnosis. They can also help elucidate disease mechanisms and properly evaluate the pharmacological effects and toxicity of new compounds. In this Special Issue, we invite contributions on the utility of novel or existing biomarkers. We invite you to submit original research papers, reviews, and communications to our Special Issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Veterinary Sciences (ISSN 2306-7381) is an international and interdisciplinary scholarly open access journal that aims at publishing research in all fields of veterinary medicine in a democratic way. We encourage scientists to publish their original research articles, reviews, communications, and short notes in as much detail as possible. Articles submitted that involve subjecting animals to unnecessary pain or suffering will not be accepted, and all articles must be submitted with the necessary ethical approval (please refer to the Ethical Guidelines for more information).
