New Insights into Canine Tumors

Message from the Guest Editor

I am delighted to inform you of the invitation to contribute to our Special Issue titled "New Insights into Canine Tumors". The scope of this Special Issue encompasses a wide range of topics, including cancer immunotherapy, genetic mutation analysis, liquid biopsy, immunotherapy biomarkers, combination treatments, cancer vaccines, early detection markers, artificial intelligence applications, and biome analysis. We aim to cover various aspects, including how these technologies are applied in cancer research and patient care. Furthermore, we will delve into the valuable insights gained from cancer treatment research in companion animals. This Special Issue aims to provide a comprehensive overview of the latest advancements in the field, fostering collaboration and knowledge sharing among researchers, clinicians, and experts in oncology. We invite you to contribute your expertise and research to this Special Issue, enriching our understanding of cancer and its management.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Veterinary Sciences (ISSN 2306-7381) is an international and interdisciplinary scholarly open access journal that aims at publishing research in all fields of veterinary medicine in a democratic way. We encourage scientists to publish their original research articles, reviews, communications, and short notes in as much detail as possible. Articles submitted that involve subjecting animals to unnecessary pain or suffering will not be accepted, and all articles must be submitted with the necessary ethical approval (please refer to the Ethical Guidelines for more information).
