Current Knowledge on Equine Endocrine and Metabolic Disease

Message from the Guest Editor

Equine Endocrinology is a rapidly expanding field, with research on the pathophysiology, endocrine imbalances, clinical signs, epidemiology and treatment of PPID, insulin dysregulation, HPA axis dysregulation and calcium and phosphorus regulation of particular interest to equine veterinarians and horse owners. We are pleased to invite you to submit an article for peer review in the area of equine endocrinology and metabolic disease. This Special Issue aims to encompass 10-20 high-quality articles. Both original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following: Physiology, pathophysiology, epidemiology, diagnostic testing or treatment of conditions of the equine endocrine system including hypothalamus, pituitary, adrenal, thyroid, pancreas such as HPA axis dysregulation, CIRCI, pituitary pars intermedia dysfunction, RAAS regulation or dysfunction, growth hormone dysfunction, insulin dysregulation, equine metabolic syndrome, endocrinopathic laminitis, thyroid dysfunction, anhidrosis, pheochromocytoma, calcium, phosphorus, magnesium or parathyroid disorders regulation. I look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Veterinary Sciences (ISSN 2306-7381) is an international and interdisciplinary scholarly open access journal that aims at publishing research in all fields of veterinary medicine in a democratic way. We encourage scientists to publish their original research articles, reviews, communications, and short notes in as much detail as possible. Articles submitted that involve subjecting animals to unnecessary pain or suffering will not be accepted, and all articles must be submitted with the necessary ethical approval (please refer to the Ethical Guidelines for more information).
