Prevention and Control of Swine Infectious Diseases

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue of Veterinary Sciences will welcome original research and review articles aiming to provide an overview of advances in the prevention and control of infectious swine diseases. In this issue, research will focus on epidemiological studies in swine farms, progress of detection methods for different swine pathogens, and progress in vaccine development. Genomic analysis of different pathogens, characteristic of novel antigens, as well as effects of novel adjuvants will also be included in this Special Issue. Additionally, other research areas related to the prevention and control of swine disease are welcome. We look forward to receiving your contributions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Veterinary Sciences (ISSN 2306-7381) is an international and interdisciplinary scholarly open access journal that aims at publishing research in all fields of veterinary medicine in a democratic way. We encourage scientists to publish their original research articles, reviews, communications, and short notes in as much detail as possible. Articles submitted that involve subjecting animals to unnecessary pain or suffering will not be accepted, and all articles must be submitted with the necessary ethical approval (please refer to the Ethical Guidelines for more information).
