Message from the Guest Editors

The Special Issue on Climate Change Adaptation in Water Engineering aims at attracting experts in the assessment of the impact of climate variability and change on water resource availability and management. Long duration time series analyses and assessment techniques for changes in extremes are welcome. On the engineering side, structural and nonstructural adaptation measures to the observed or projected changes in urban hydraulics, river and environmental engineering, and coastal engineering will be presented.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

In the context of global changes, the sustainable management of water cycles, going from global and regional water cycles to urban, industrial and agricultural water cycles, plays a very important role on the water resources and on their relationships with food, energy, biodiversity, ecosystem functioning and human health. Water invites authors to provide innovative original full articles, critical reviews and timely short communications and to propose special issues devoted to new technological and scientific domains and to interdisciplinary approaches of the water cycles. We ensure a critical review process and a quick turnaround between submission and final decision.
