

Special Issue

Advances in the Relationship Between Climate Change and Runoff in Watershed

Message from the Guest Editors

Potential topics include, but are not limited to the following:

- Relationship between climate and runoff projections in different river catchments;
- Variability of river runoff projections in time and space for different hydrological regions;
- Evaluation of uncertainty of runoff projections under a future climate;
- Assessment of river runoff projections in the ungauged river catchments;
- Error evaluation in river runoff projections under various climate input data.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

In the context of global changes, the sustainable management of water cycles, going from global and regional water cycles to urban, industrial and agricultural water cycles, plays a very important role on the water resources and on their relationships with food, energy, biodiversity, ecosystem functioning and human health. Water invites authors to provide innovative original full articles, critical reviews and timely short communications and to propose special issues devoted to new technological and scientific domains and to interdisciplinary approaches of the water cycles. We ensure a critical review process and a quick turnaround between submission and final decision.
