Harmful Algae Control

Message from the Guest Editor

The content of this Special Issue is not limited the following areas, and any innovative full-length papers, reviews, and review articles that contribute to the efficiency of harmful algal control are welcome. We look forward to receiving submissions for this Special Issue from researchers around the world. Keywords

- water bloom control
- red tide control
- emerging pollutants
- physical methods
- chemical methods
- biological methods
- ecological methods
- mechanisms of action
- short-term effects
- long-term effects

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

In the context of global changes, the sustainable management of water cycles, going from global and regional water cycles to urban, industrial and agricultural water cycles, plays a very important role on the water resources and on their relationships with food, energy, biodiversity, ecosystem functioning and human health. Water invites authors to provide innovative original full articles, critical reviews and timely short communications and to propose special issues devoted to new technological and scientific domains and to interdisciplinary approaches of the water cycles. We ensure a critical review process and a quick turnaround between submission and final decision.
