

Special Issue

Public Policy and Sustainable Development: Regional Perspectives

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue invites original research articles, reviews, and policy-oriented contributions examining sustainable development through public policy, governance, participation, equity, and social justice, with a strong emphasis on regional perspectives.

Submissions should analyse how policies operate in practice, whose interests they serve, and which governance arrangements enable or constrain equitable and sustainable outcomes across diverse regional contexts, including Southeast Asia and the Global South.

Areas of interest include, but not limited to, the following topics:

- Equity and social justice in sustainable development policy;
- Climate policy, climate justice, and community resilience;
- Governance and institutional capacity;
- Gender equality, disability, and social inclusion (GEDSI);
- Implementation of international development agendas in regional contexts;
- Multi-level and cross-sectoral policy coordination;
- Participatory, community-led policy approaches.

I look forward to receiving your contributions.
